

June 9, 2011

Contact:
Maria Miller
330-523-5400

C&D Recycling Forum Programmed for Success

Sept. 25-27 event in Baltimore area will offer success stories and bring attendees up to speed on industry changes.

RICHFIELD, OHIO-The 2011 C&D Recycling Forum, hosted by Construction & Demolition Recycling magazine, has been designed to deliver programming to improve the bottom lines for companies that handle C&D materials.

Scheduled for Sept. 25-27 at the Turf Valley Conference Center and Resort in Ellicott City (Baltimore), Md., the event will provide information of value to demolition contractors, general contractors, mixed C&D recyclers, concrete and asphalt recyclers, waste haulers, solid waste and recycling officials, government officials and scrap metal dealers and recyclers striving to improve their businesses.

“We listened to feedback from last year’s attendees and tailored our programming to help them achieve success in an ever-evolving industry and economic climate,” says Brian Taylor, associate publisher and editorial director of Construction & Demolition Recycling. “Our sessions will provide attendees with the knowledge they need to operate successfully and manage projects profitably.”

Session topics include:

- Power Surge or Brownout?—Panelists at this session provide updates on current and potential tie-ins between the alternative energy market and C&D scrap and residues;
- Dollars and Sense: Two Case Studies—Case studies of two prominent projects, one demolition and one construction, that profited by hitting lofty recycling targets.
- A World of Change—The introduction of a mixed C&D facility certification program and changes to the LEED rating system are discussed in this session.
- Thriving in a Quiet Zone—Demolition contractors and recyclers share what they've learned from working in hospitals and other quiet zones;
- Optimal Crushing Options—Presenters will provide case studies and on-the-job experience to offer helpful, bottom-line advice on concrete and asphalt crushing;
- Excelling at Recycling—Several NDA 2010 Environmental Excellence Award Winners offer overviews of their winning projects and strategies.

In addition to the programming, attendees will also be able to meet with equipment and service providers between sessions and at lunch and evening cocktail receptions.

For more information or to register, visit www.cdrecycler.com/forum or call (800) 456-0707. Those interested in sponsorship or exhibitor opportunities can email egallo@gie.net or call and ask for Ed Gallo at (800) 456-0707.

###